About Global Work Camp

Student-led program planned and run by university students to foster global citizenship among young people, including Japanese and international students. By connecting people from diverse backgrounds within the community, the program promotes a multicultural and inclusive society where everyone can play an active role.

Set in the rich natural environment of Aso, 50 young participants will take part in a 3-day, 2-night program, engaging in in-depth discussions. As Japan faces rapid population decline and a super-aging society, participants will explore—in both Japanese and English—how young people can help create inclusive communities where people of diverse backgrounds, including foreign residents and people with disabilities, can thrive together and contribute to the well-being of society as a whole. Featuring speaker session, where students can share their own activities and unique experiences. Join us this summer to create unforgettable memories, and deepen your learning before the new semester begins!
